He was a farmer in Clifton Park his entire life. He married Augusta S. Groom and the couple had 5 children. N. Sylvester's History of Saratoga County includes a picture of the home of Lewis R. Garnsey.

Stony Creek Reservoir

Papers

History:

The Stony Creek Reservoir was built in 1952 and completed in 1953. The reservoir is owned by the Town of Colonie and was acquired by that town, after much public debate and litigation, by eminent domain and by private sale of lands. The reservoir was opposed by the Clifton Town Board and by many residents of the towns of Colonie and Clifton Park, especially residents of Vischer Ferry, where the reservoir was to be located. The residents sent petitions to the state government to oppose the construction and brought suits against the town of Colonie, but ultimately lost the battle against the reservoir. The opposition in Vischer Ferry was led by three residents, A.C. Stevens, Chester Hall, the owner of the Francis Vischer historic home and Howard Becker, the Town Historian and the owner of some land that was impacted by the dam and reservoir. Residents suggested the Ranney plan as a source of water rather than the reservoir. The Vischer house was moved to Menands, NY. The construction also caused the loss of Van Vranken Road, the oldest road in the town of Clifton Park.

Scope:

This collection includes a variety of material that provides substantial documentation of the public fight over the construction of the dam and reservoir. It includes court documents, petitions of opposition to the reservoir, correspondence, publications and reports related to water supply, reservoirs and dams, maps, resolutions against the reservoirs, photographs, and minutes of meetings of Clifton Park Protective Association (opposition to dam/reservoir).
